Define Functional and Non-Functional Requirements:

Create a comprehensive list of requirements to define exactly what your solution will do and how well it will perform.

- Functional Requirements (FR) define specific behaviors, functions, or features of the system (What the system should do).
- Non-Functional Requirements (NFR) specify the criteria that judge the operation of a system, rather than specific behaviors (How the system should be).

Fill out the descriptions and necessary details for each category provided below.
